Russian Wood Patchwork House 'dacha'

The artistic design of this house is a combination of a simple layout with a clear function and a façade composed wooden patchworks of various shapes and colors. The design envisaged a comfortable living space for two adult couples and their grown up children. The program also required ample space to accommodate guests. On the ground floor are the kitchen and adjoining dining room, boiler room, summer veranda, bath and shower. The first floor consists of two bedrooms, two wardrobe rooms, washing room, two toilets and shower rooms, while the work shop or studio, sauna, summer veranda, toilet and shower room are all located on the second floor.
